Local Youth Rescues Guardsman

[Special to The Avalanche]

CAMP GRAYLING—The 17-year-old son of a Michigan National Guard technician helped avert the possible drowning of a Guardsman whose boat capsized in Lake Margrethe, Wednesday.

Mark Kesteloot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Kesteloot of Grayling, and two friends were returning from waterskiing, when they noticed a disabled boat.

The crippled craft, piloted by a Guardsman who asked not to be identified, capsized while being towed ashore by the Kesteloot boat. Following an unsuccessful attempt to save the Guardsman who had been thrown into the water by another passenger in Kesteloot's craft, young Kesteloot jumped into the water.

After what witnesses described as a "brief, but difficult struggle," Kesteloot managed to wrestle the man to safety.

No military police report was available on the incident, the rescued Guardsman did not require medical attention and returned to duty with his unit.

WARNING

The Artillery Range at Camp Grayling, located north of County Road 612 and south of the North Branch of the AuSable River, will be used by National Guard Units 19-23 August 74 for range firing, air to ground.

The Known Distance Ranges located South West of Lake Margrethe will be used for small arms firing 20-22 August 74.

These ranges will be closed on above dates and all persons are warned to stay out of these areas.

Camp Grayling Chapel Dedicated

[Special to The Avalanche]

"In gratitude for the labors of all who love and serve this chapel; in loving remembrance of those who have finished their course; in the hope of blessed immortality with God our Father; we dedicate this chapel and also dedicate ourselves anew to the worship and service of almighty God. Amen."

With those final words, the Camp Grayling Memorial Chapel was officially dedicated on Thursday afternoon, Aug. 16.

The chapel, which is nearing completion, is expected to cost about $220 thousand when interior work is finished, landscaping is provided and the building is carpeted and furnished. The building, on Howe Road at Camp Grayling, is being financed by voluntary contributions from Guardsmen, Guard organizations and other interested persons and to this point some $130 thousand has been raised.

Participating in the dedication ceremony, in addition to chaplains of the Michigan Army National Guard, were MG C.C. Schnipke, Adjutant General of Michigan; MG Gerhardt W. Hyatt, Chief of Chaplains, U.S. Army, BG (Ret.) Carson R. Neifert, president of the Chapel Board, other members of the Chapel Board and COL Robert J. Plocki, Fifth U.S. Army Chaplain.

Man Held On Rape Charge

A Roscommon man is being held in the Crawford County jail in lieu of $15,000 bond on a charge of rape, which allegedly occurred Friday night, August 9th, in Frederic Township.

Dennis G. Mills, 18, Roscommon, is charged with the rape of a 16 year old girl.

He was arraigned before Judge Francis Walsh in District Court on Thursday, August 15, and demanded preliminary examination. His bond was continued at $15,000.

A Vanishing Breed

During the 40's the AuSable River guides started their own organization, to establish minimum standards governing their services, to insure quality for their customers. Thirty-one men attended that meeting; most of them made careers of guiding on the river. I was honored with an honorary membership. These men were interesting companions, knew the feeding habits of trout, and provided their fishermen with the proper flies to use. They were good cooks over open fires—their lunches were tasty and a highlight of the trip.

On August 17, a memorial service for Jim Wakeley was held at "Guides Rest" on the river, where a five-ton boulder holds a plaque honoring Jim. The service was attended by nearly 100 of his friends and relatives. Hundreds of letters from many states and foreign countries have been received by his wife, Jeanne, and her family.

The service was in the hands of another Guide in another field, Pastor Paul Weber. He uses a bible and guides his followers to better, more God-fearing lives. He was magnetic and inspiring; those gathered there came forward to shake his hand and express their feelings and thanks.

Jim was possibly the youngest of this vanishing breed, but one of the last to thrill out fishermen on a river trip. The one remaining fully qualified member of the group was there, Norval Stephan. It is a tribute to these men to note that, while Norval Stephan does little guiding on the river now, he, like our guide at the service, also devotes more of his time with his Bible, leading his followers in the Lord's work. Jim's plaque is placed on the spot where most guides stopped for lunch for many years. The owners of the property, Trout Unlimited, have named it "Guides Rest," to commemorate those members of a vanishing breed who have preceded Jim Wakeley. George A. Griffith

CHAPEL DEDICATION—BG (Ret.) Carson R. Neifert, president of the Camp Grayling Memorial Chapel Board, officially turns the new chapel over to Chaplain (LTC) Harold A. Kirchenbauer in dedication ceremonies at Camp Grayling Aug. 16. The exterior of the building is basically completed and interior work and landscaping is expected to be finished by the summer of 1975. River Country Players

Over 300 persons enjoyed three evenings of live theater entertainment during the Mill-Town Festival at the Joseph Stripe Auditorium for the production of "Barefoot in the Park." This familiar play has just 4 main characters and 2 "walk-ons," which require a great deal of acting ability to carry it well.

Jim Curcuro, as Paul Bratter, played the part of the "stuffed shirt" to perfection and his drunk scene will be remembered for a long time. Norma Naour was perfect for the part of the lovely young Corie, which required a vivacious person. Her part required a change from the sweet young thing to the angry, crying wife, both of which she portrayed very well. Sue Barnett, as Ethel Banks, played the difficult part of the "long-suffering mother" with exceptional skill and Bill Weiman was very good as the unusual upstairs neighbor, who was "58 years old and a thoroughly nice fellow." Bob Cole, received a round of applause whenever on stage as the telephone man as his facial expressions and actions were very very funny. Bob Hart spoke no lines, but he coughed, hacked, weezed and breathed hard very convincingly as he played the delivery man.

The cast and crew extended their appreciation to everyone who supported the play and although relieved that this production is complete, are looking forward to the next play which will be sometime this fall.

The theater group is open to any adult in the area interested in working in live theater. Interested persons can contact Sandy Fleming, Pres.; Ernie Moon, Vice-President; Norma Naour, Recording Sec.; or Bev Morley, Treasurer, and Beryl Konopnicki, corresponding secretary or any of the members.

GRAYLING, MICHIGAN—THURSDAY, AUGUST 22, 1974

Wise Commentary

Known as one of the richest men in the world, Mr. Jean Paul Getty commented a short time ago that, "I think money invested in a company that gives employment to people and good merchandise at a reasonable price is better invested than it would be in charities. I think people want jobs more than they want charity. If I am remembered at all, it will be because I created a lot of jobs for a lot of people."

Mr. Getty's words express a fundamental truth that may explain in some measure the dismally-low esteem in which a majority of Americans hold their elected public officials today. For longer than most of those now living can remember, candidates for public office have promised bigger and better handouts to the people. Government gifts, grants and subsidies touch practically everyone. The welfare state has bred inflation, bitterness and corruption. It seems that the bigger and more costly the social programs become the less confidence the people have in those who propose and enact them.

Someday the politicians may learn the truth of Mr. Getty's words, that "people want jobs more than they want charity." They also want individual independence, which they cannot have under a welfare state system.

Highest Stakes of All

In this split-second nuclear age, the fate of mankind may rest upon the adequacy of U.S. military power in terms of commanding the respect and deterring the aggressive inclinations of the Soviet Union. No diplomatic sweet talk can deflect the sophisticated weaponry of another nation bent on destruction. On land, sea and air, the U.S. cannot afford to be number two. With the advent of the revolutionary B-1 Air Force bomber, due to make its first flight in the fall of 1974, U.S. national security will be placed on a firmer footing.

Versatility is the primary characteristic of the B-1. The aircraft is designed to replace the aging B-52 as the backbone of the Strategic Air Command's manned bomber force. The B-1 is a supersonic, highly-sophisticated aircraft capable of carrying a variety of nuclear and non-nuclear weapons. The massive four-engine jet can operate efficiently at treetop level or sizzle through the upper reaches of the Earth's atmosphere at 1,300 plus m.p.h. The B-1 long-range strategic bomber will provide a crucial deterrent to foreign attack and through its flexibility of response limit escalation of an attack—should one occur. Those who have received training in the computer-controlled and highly-realistic B-1 flight simulator are impressed by its performance. Said one after his first "flight," "I walked away from the cockpit...with a new sense of appreciation for the excellent flying qualities that are being built into the B-1. And, I envied the men who will pilot it."

U.S. military and economic strength in proper combination is a prerequisite for the maintenance of world peace. We dare not cut the nation's defense expenditures drastically, especially in vital research and new weapons development programs. Political expediency must not shape judgments concerning the merits of essential U.S. defense expenditures. The lives of hundreds of millions of people could be the price of a wrong decision.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

From Calvary Baptist Church
On Our Bible Heritage Attacked

During the past three articles we have proven that some of the greater religious leaders of the past believed only in the Bible as God's inerrant authority in their lives. In fact, during the tremendous growth of Christianity in America during the Nineteenth century, almost all denominations believed in the Bible alone for authority. They did not agree as to what the Bible said in all points, but they all agreed that whatsoever the Bible said is so. During this period, most churches held all other Christians in respect regardless of their differences. Since they all worshiped the same Lord, trusted His work for their salvation and believed His Word as their only authority, they stood united in the basic essentials of Christianity.

The problem which brought division, confusion and strife into American churches was the infiltration of liberalism from Europe during the early part of the 20th century. Liberalism attacked Bible Christianity in three areas: 1) thorough higher criticism; 2) the historical Jesus; and 3) the theory of evolution.

The attack of higher criticism was an attempt by men to disprove the Bible by comparing it to other historical documents from history. The men doing the work took a deductive approach. They approached the Bible as a book full of human errors and mistakes. They interpreted all documents where subjective analysis permitted as contrary to the Bible. (Modern Archaeology has since vindicated the accuracy of the Bible and disproved the false theories of unsave liberals). Soon there was a division between those who accepted the Bible as the infallible word of God and the liberals who said the Bible contained the Word of God along with human errors.

The search for the historical Jesus began because liberals could not accept the Bible account of Jesus Christ. They rejected all supernatural aspects of Jesus Christ and His ministry. Using human reasoning and their own subjective interpretation to the secular documents they could locate, they created a new Jesus. Some even went so far as to imply that Jesus was the illegitimate son of a blond German soldier born to a young prostitute named Mary. Obviously, you can see the tremendous division brought into the churches by this blasphemous heresy. The Bible declared Jesus Christ to be God in human flesh, and the liberals implied Him to be of illegitimate birth.

The third area of attack was the theory of evolution. Darwin seemed to have all the answers at that time. Evolution was a neat system with only a few gaps which would be explained in time. Evolution seemed to prove the Bible to be mythology. Evolution was a hundred times more dangerous to Christianity then, than it is today. Now we have hundreds of reputable scientists who reject evolution and accept creation. For example, in Michigan we have the Creation Research Society where men like Dr. John N. Moore, professor of Natural Science at Michigan State University, and many more scientists join together in promoting the creation account of beginnings as opposed to evolution.

Religious leaders across America are trying to tell the people that the old Liberal-Conservative controversy is over, and we should all be united in Christian love and brotherhood. There are still some of us in the tradition of Luther, Calvin and Wesley who refuse to unite in "love and brotherhood" with those who make our Lord the lying illegitimate son of a prostitute, and the master product of evolution.

Fear Itself?
Did you read about the little elderly lady who said she felt more secure and safer in 1933? She says back then all she had to fear was fear itself.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. John Payne of Flint, Mr. and Mrs. James Payne, Cindy and Bob of Bay City, James Payne, Jr. of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Qualman of Flint, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Welsh and daughter, Kristie of Garden City. Adult Ed. Preparing For Fall Classes

The Community School Office of the Crawford AuSable School District is in full swing preparing for the opening of the 1974-75 school year of Adult Education, Adult Enrichment Classes, Adult Recreation and other Community Service Programs. Those people who plan on attending adult classes this year will have the largest selection of classes and activities to choose from than ever before.

Adults planning to work on their high school diploma will find a large selection of interesting elective classes to choose from this year. Heading the list are the required courses in United States History, United States Government and American Literature. Also, because of its popularity with students last year, economics has been included in this fall's lineup of classes. New additions to the Adult Education Curriculum include General Business and Record Keeping, Theatre and Drama; Geometry, Journalism and Creative Writing, Chemistry, Drafting and Mechanical Drawing and a class in appreciation of Music, Poetry and Art. It will also be possible this year for students to gain high school credit by enrolling in some enrichment courses.

Plans for Adult Enrichment Classes to be offered are now in progress, and Community School Director Howard Taylor is asking everyone in the community to assist him in determining this fall's new up of classes by completing a Community Interest Survey. These survey forms will be located in various places throughout the school district and everyone is requested to check the items they're interested in. Those classes which receive the greatest interest will be the ones offered this fall.

Also included in 1974-75 Adult Education Activities is a new program in adult recreation which will include an adult basketball league as well as provisions for family recreation. Final recreation planning will not be completed for a few weeks.

Adult education classes for those enrolling in high school completion and basic education will begin Monday evening, September 16 at 7:00 p.m. at the new high school. The first term of Adult Enrichment Classes will begin at 7:00 p.m. on Monday, September 23.

Anyone wishing more information about the Crawford-AuSable School Community Education Programs should contact the Community School Office at 348-7641. The Community School Office is open daily from 9:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. and registration for fall classes is now being accepted.

Historical Society

Saturday, during the Mill-Town Festival, over 136 persons visited the Historical Society Museum. Ella Weaver was the RSVP volunteer on duty dressed in her pink Centennial dress and she was kept very busy signing in visitors and answering questions.

There have been over 415 visitors at the Museum since it opened on July 18th, just 5 weeks ago. Nearly all visitors have visited in the afternoons, so we have adjusted the hours, so that it is open from 1:00 to 5:00 on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

There have been 11 different RSVP volunteers that have staffed the desk and their efforts are certainly appreciated. There is a new sign identifying the building and there will be an "Open or Closed" sign at the top so everyone can determine at a glance whether to stop.

Plan today to visit the Museum soon, as the displays will be changed from time to time and there will be different items to see. There is no charge for admission, however there has been about $30.00 in donations received. We wish to thank all those who have donated items for display and also to those who have donated their time and money.

RSVP Director

national industrial associations. As manager of the Grayling Chamber of Commerce he has pioneered a number of innovative approaches to community development and promotion. He is active in East Michigan Tourist Association membership.

Longworth's background in understanding of county government is said to be a key factor in his third term appointment. One member of the regional commission's nominating committee said, "In view of the rapid changes in our society as well as in state and federal government programs, this regional commission is going to be busy serving the eight counties and 103 local government units in Northeast Michigan. This is no time to change a slate of officers who can get the job done."

The other officers, also re-elected to a third term, are:

Vice-Chairman Frederick T. Johnston, well-known Alpena businessman. Johnston was chairman of the regional commission when it first formed in 1968 as an economic development district.

Secretary Herman Vogler, Rogers City real estate businessman and site developer, who is also a member of the Presque Isle County Board of Commissioners.

Treasurer Roy Bogeman, equalization director for Montmorency County. Bogeman is active in numerous county government and civic programs.

The difference in crooks

Convict John Garfield pounded big rocks into little rocks. Convict Otto Kerner goes to town on weekends, for dancing and movies.

That's the difference between breaking the law and being "at variance" with it.

It is one thing to obstruct justice by slugging a cop. It is another thing to obstruct justice by taking the FBI chief to lunch and burying his head in the mashed potatoes.

I watched John Garfield on the late, late show. He got caught stealing and was sent to Sing Sing where Pat O'Brien was warden. Garfield was a bigtime hood and figured he should get special privileges. He didn't want to wear a prison uniform. O'Brien said OK, and Garfield had to run around the prison yard in baggy underwear.

Garfield didn't want to work. O'Brien said he'd either sweat on the rock pile or never see the outside of his cramped cell. After a few weeks, Garfield was begging to make pebbles.

The only way I can watch TV is while reading a newspaper. While watching O'Brien best Garfield, I was reading about Otto Kerner. He used to be governor of Illinois, a federal judge, U.S. district attorney and chairman of a presidential commission. He is now in prison because, like Garfield, he got caught stealing.

Kerner's Prison is in Lexington, Ky. There are no bars on the windows. He has TV and radio in his room, along with private shower and bath. He has continual access to a library and a poolroom. He can go to town weekends and stay overnight in a hotel with his wife. There are also women convicts in Kerner's "prison" and the gals often join the men for dances and other social activities.

Pat O'Brien would have apoplexy at Lexington. John Garfield would send for Ann Sheridan and never go home.

Kerner is locked up under what is called "minimum security." This means he has more money than most people and more clout than the warden. These lace prisons are operated mostly for White House alumni. Guys like McGruder, Colson and Ehrlichman. But governors and judges are also admitted when there is room.

The only unbendable requirement is that all prisoners must have law degrees.

If you just got off a shuttle from Mars, you might wonder how come this nation clobbers little crooks and plays patty-cake with big crooks. It's all a matter of semantics. It is not important what crime you commit. What's important is what you call your crime. For instance, stealing is stealing and pickpockets go to jail. Unless you call it embezzlement in which case the stealer is given a raise in pay so he won't have to steal anymore.

If John Garfield wanted to stop a police investigation, he would slip some dough to a cop. This is called a bribe. If he lied about the bribe, he could be in more trouble. This is called perjury.

But if Richard Nixon wants to stop an FBI investigation, he simply orders the CIA to tell Efram Zimbalist Jr. to forget it or our nation will be bombed by Cambodia. This is called being President.

And when Nixon is caught shoveling crap to the nation on prime time TV, it isn't called lying or perjury. It is called being "at variance" with the truth.

In the Garfield movie, he finally developed a grudging respect for Warden O'Brien and, at the end, Garfield turned into a good guy.

When Nixon reached the end, he took a TV bow for saving the nation and turned into the nearest pawnshop to see what he could get for a used crown.

Ella Grasso new women's champ

Let's hear it for Ella Grasso, who may become the first woman in American history to become governor of a state without the help of her husband's coattails.

Mrs. Grasso, currently a Congressman, has won the Democratic nomination as candidate for governor of Connecticut. She has a good chance to be elected in November.

Her husband is not a formal politician; he's a retired school principal.

Three other women have served as governors of various states, but in each case, the governor succeeded her husband in the executive office.

The female governors were Nellie Ross of Wyoming in 1925, Miriam Ferguson of Texas in 1925 and Lurleen Wallace of Alabama in 1967.

I like the Grasso way better. She earned her political spurs along the way. Her nomination for governor caps a 20-year political career that includes four years in the Connecticut legislature, 12 years as Connecticut secretary of state, and since 1971 as a member of Congress.

There will be two women running for state office on the Grasso ticket, which will include Gloria Schaffer for another term as secretary of state. This doesn't bother either Mrs. Grasso or Mrs. Schaffer, nor, apparently, the Democratic ticket-makers in Connecticut.

"I think we are two persons who are also women," commented Mrs. Grasso. "It's a natural fact and I feel that what we bring by virtue of our lifetimes of public service and dedication are the factors on which we will be judged."

I couldn't agree more with these comments.

For a chauvinistically inclined male columnist, the thoughts expressed by Mrs. Grasso provide welcome contrast to the more militant, instant-candidate type of approach exemplified by the extremist feminine chauvinists.

Congressman Bella Abzug—who comes on as a refreshingly interesting sidelight to national affairs—recently told the National Women's Political Caucus that women should not continue to work for male political candidates "unless they elicit a quid pro quo" for female candidates.

She aroused considerable applause with this comment: "I think it would be a delightful learning experience (for men) to walk into their offices and find no women at the reception desks, no women at the telephone, no women writing position papers, no women canvassing the voters and no women doing the scheduling. And someday they will find no women voting for them."

That's a real crowd grabber—a feat at which Mrs. Abzug excels—but it is not very realistic. If women would stick together at the polls right now, they could control virtually every office in existence. It's not so much the male vote that female candidates must convert; it's rather the female vote that they must assure.

Michigan has a fair-to-middling record of women running for top office. I don't think there's ever been a female major party candidate for governor, but Mrs. Lenore Romney and Mrs. Elly Peterson are recent statewide candidates for U.S. Senator, and Mrs. Margaret Price in recent memory was a statewide candidate for auditor general.

Mrs. Martha Griffiths has been an outstanding congressman for many years.

And of course, Supreme Court Justice Mary Coleman, elected statewide in 1972, is also a wife.

One female candidate has announced an intention to seek statewide office this year. Mrs. Lorraine Beebe, a former state senator, wants the Republican nomination for secretary of state. Mrs. Beebe, a strong advocate of permissive abortion, lost out in the senate shortly after that hot legislative issue was debated. More recently, she resigned under some pressure from a state post in the consumer affairs field.

Mrs. Beebe appears to be pursuing the Abzug approach, while Mrs. Coleman is more in the Grasso line.

Jack Pine's Stump

Saturday afternoon was just beautiful—a perfect day for the dedication of the Jim Wakeley Memorial on the Main Stream. Close to a hundred people were there. Friends of Jim's, but representing the many hundreds more who couldn't attend or didn't know about it. Rev. Paul Weber of Mt. Hope Lutheran Church did a masterful job. His short talk was to the point, meaningful and honest. Jim would have liked it. As I stood there, facing the river, many thoughts flicked through my mind. The river, to a certain extent, was like Jim. It provides to those who would but partake its very best. It asks nothing, but gives beauty, enjoyment and pleasure to all who travel it. Jim was like that, too. As a guide, he gave his very best. Always cheerful, forever helpful and full of the knowledge and heritage of the Ausable. But in one way Jim and the river varied. The river is unforgiving, has no soul. Jim was both forgiving and had a soul, for he cared about people. I glanced to my left and saw a picnic table he had built and put there. On my right, in a small growth, a young pine hung two grills he had put there in case someone might have forgotten theirs. And hidden in the same trees was a plastic sack, still partially filled with dry wood, put there last year by Jim should the forgetful not bring an axe. I also thought of another table upstream he had put in last year and two more on the South Branch. Jim Wakeley was that sort of person. He cared about people. And nothing finer could be said of any person than that "he cared."

One of the great problems facing anyone who attempts to do a column (other than the editor, that is) is timeliness. My timing last week was horrible. I took the City to task for not doing any work on that new parking lot on Peninsular. It was written on Saturday, and on Monday the work was started. The comments appeared on Wednesday. So I offer an abject apology to the City for that—but that only. The rest still stands.

JP.

I know some people who have a dog named Damnit. That's got to be the greatest name I ever heard of for a dog. But I wonder if the dog might have a complex of some sort. There is absolutely no way that you can talk to a dog named Damnit gently. It just doesn't come off right. For instance, try saying "time to eat, Damnit" or "you're a nice dog, Damnit." It's virtually impossible to say it with love. I am about to inherit a beautiful Irish Setter pup, and I am sure I am going to name the beast Damnit. In fact I wish I had named at least one of my kids Damnit. Instead we gave them such mundane nicknames as Jugbutt, Pig Pen and The Rat. Those were the bad ones. The other kids had more common nicknames. The Rat was the most interesting. There was no way that he could stand peace and quiet. It was a vacuum he had to invade. Pig Pen was a placid baby, happy to sit in the corner hour after hour just playing with a couple of sticks. The Rat couldn't stand it, would go over, take his sticks away and then kick him. That disrupted the whole household, but The Rat was happy. The Rat and Pig Pen eventually, when they grew up, became great friends, but I still think Pig Pen will really clobber him some day. Lord knows he's got it coming. The Rat actually started out with the name of Mick-Mouse, but when he reached the magnificent age of reason (five), he announced that he was too big to be called a mouse, so we promptly named him Mick-Rat, which made him very happy. As time passed, we shortened it to "The Rat." Traveling across the U.P., as we often did, we crossed a stream called the Rat River, and would tell The Rat we found him there under a rock. I think he still believes it. I usually show The Rat this column before it is published. I won't this time. I'll wait until Wednesday and then he can take the typewriter away from, and kick the head of, old.....

44 members of the family of Mrs. Camilla Sorenson gathered for a picnic at Island Park in Mt. Pleasant on Sunday, August 18, to wish her a Happy Birthday. The youngest one present was her great-granddaughter, Stacie Harrison. Those attending were from Benton Harbor, Eagle, Portland, Bay City, Grayling, Mt. Pleasant and Margate, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Davenport have returned home from a month's trip to Washington State where they visited their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Don Brown and family. While there, they went oystering three times and salmon fishing twice. They camped along the way and stopped at Yellowstone National Park. They returned home earlier than planned due to his mother, who lives in Lake City, having a stroke.

Mrs. Alfred Harland and children, Ann and Doug, spent 10 days in Elgin, Ill. visiting another son, Mike. They attended the production of "Pajama Game" in which Mike played the part of Sid. They also saw many of the sights of the area.

Mrs. Mary Margaret McCarthy of Detroit spent two weeks with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Dean.

Mrs. Lida Goodrick spent a week the first of August with her nephew, Preborn "Tony" Richards, in Cheboygan.

Mrs. Cecilia Vaughn and daughter Patty of Detroit visited their cousin, Mrs. Lida Goodrick, for a couple of days.

Cathy and Jack Jones of Lansing were August 9 to 11 weekend visitors of their parents, Mrs. Billie Forbes, and Mr. and Mrs. Evert Jones.

Jack and June Forbes of Farmington started on a down river trip on Sunday, to be gone several days.

The next time you are out for an evening stroll or bicycle ride, go down State St. past the home of the Joseph Gildners where the lady with the green thumb, Mrs. Mathilde Ziebell Gildner, has a gorgeous array of pink and white petunias. She always had a display in the planter along the drive, and this year she added a second group along the new curbing in front of their home. Go slowly and take a peek into her backyard where she has beautiful roses and other flowers. Thank you, Mrs. Gildner, for beautifying our city.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

How embarrassing to recognize a person's face but be unable to recall his name! It happens to most of us occasionally.

God always knows us. His eye is always open to see us. His ear is always open to hear us. We can enjoy His acquaintance daily.

We can enjoy the Presence of God in a special way when we attend church. When we turn our attention fully upon Him, when we elevate our thinking to those matters which hold eternal value, God speaks in the warmest of tones.

Yes, God knows us. He calls us by name. He never forgets.

An open letter to the people of Crawford County:

Space prohibits the naming of each individual, organization, merchant, etc. who made the 1st Annual Mill-Town Festival a reality...and even a success. We do, however, owe some apologies in some areas for arrangements that didn't quite get completed and/or some breakdown in communications here and there...in some cases there was a scarcity of people to view the event, but please remember the first annual of anything can't always be perfect and all that we want it to be...

We wish that time would allow us to personally reach out to each of you and warmly extend our appreciation for your helping hands, your combined cooperation and efforts in behalf of your community.

And to you who participated in the events, thereby supporting us in a different form, our heartfelt thanks.

Grayling is rich in history and resources...our human resources are to be congratulated at this time for their efforts to commemorate our origin. Let's make the 2nd Annual Mill-Town Festival even bigger and Better! Why not volunteer right now to be on that planning committee for 1974?
